

The Symbolism in Suzanne Giesemann's Awakened Way Coin:

The yin yang symbol represents our human side which lives in a world filled with opposites. We face endless choices of light or dark. As human beings we learn through trial and error. The more our choices are in alignment with our true nature, which is love, the more peace we experience.

Suzanne's "Love at the Center" logo represents our spirit side. The circle is the symbol of the oneness of all things. The heart at the center represents the Love at the center of each of us. The spiral within the circle represents the growth of the soul, evolving ever onward and upward. The three infinity signs represent your infinite nature of as Mind, body, and Spirit as well as "The 3 E's" to your soul's evolution: Educate yourself about your True Nature, Experience expanded states, and Engage Higher Consciousness.

"Heads or Tails" – A Message from Spirit

There are two sides to every coin, just as there are two sides to you. We are not speaking of the opposites such as good and bad, happy, or sad. While in human form you have the aspect of you that is spirit and the side that is human. Call them the soul and the ego if you will. The point of human existence is to master focusing on the out the soul's growth, but most humans continue to identify with the human aspects, and so we will put it into human terms: When one identifies more with the soul and Love is face up, then everybody wins.

Do you see how it works? You are still human. The ego aspect of you is always there and is to be embraced if you are to experience wholeness. But choose to be "love side up"—beating the odds of chance in this game called "being human"—and see what happens.
